The amendment received March 25, 2004 has been made of record. Claims 9-35 are pending.

The indication of allowability of claims contained in the previous office action is withdrawn in view of new prior art.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Buhrts et al in view of Kolla et al.

Buhrts et al disclose synthetic wood compositions comprising cellulosic materials, thermoplastic polymers, and lubricants in relative proportions such as claimed instantly (see claim 4). The reference further teaches the optional incorporation of stabilizers, foaming and blowing agents and process aids (column 3, lines 38-49), inorganic filler (claim 4) and HDPE or PVC as suitable polymers (column 3, lines 56-57). The reference recites a broad variety of cellulosic materials as suitable including plant fibers (column 3, lines 53-54). The reference fails to explicitly recite flax fibers.

Kolla et al disclose similar thermoplastic polymer composites comprising flax fibers as discussed in the previous office action.

It would have been obvious to incorporate the flax materials of the secondary reference into the compositions of the primary reference as the "plant fiber" component with the reasonable expectation of suitable properties ensuing.
